

SLOANE SQUARE

Art • Culture • Fashion • Food
October 2014

Celebrating the genius of Chelsea
master JMW Turner

The rise and rise of classical star Katherine Jenkins

How the French brought a certain je ne sais quoi to London

FOLLOWING the success of Carmin Luxury Handbags at jewellery boutique Lilly Hastedt, Carmin has launched La Collection Personnalisée, a selection of stylish bags with the option of adding your own quilted initials. Personally, we like the sound of "SW1". Available at Lilly Hastedt, 30 Old Church Street.

WE LOVE a touch of equestrian on the streets, and Massimo Dutti has nailed it in the third instalment of its limited-edition Equestrian Collection. Available in womenswear, menswear and childrenswear, prices range from £9.95 for socks to £265 for a leather jacket. Massimo Dutti, 19-21 King's Road.

JEWELLER to the stars Monica Vinader opens in Duke of York Square on October 31, with a selection of beautiful contemporary pieces to style, stack and personalise with engraving. Elle Macpherson, Kate Winslet and Cara Delevingne are all fans of the brand, which founder Monica Vinader started as a bespoke service, creating one-off pieces by hand from her converted forge in Norfolk. "The Chelsea boutique is a huge step for our brand and places us in the heart of a prestigious and thriving shopping district. With the Saatchi Gallery a stone's throw away, we couldn't be better placed not only to deliver an amazing experience for our existing following, but to raise our profile amongst a new audience," Vinader told Sloane Square.